Hello Derek,

The wildfowlers are planning on undertaking more conservation work down on our marsh and inland fields at Aldcliffe. Over recent years we've installed duck nest tubes, song bird nest boxes and over wintering feed stations for passerines.

We are now planning some work to benefit nesting wading birds in conjunction with the local birdwatching group. The local Natural England representative Mandy Knott is interested in getting involved and she asked us whether any other local parties might be interested in doing some conservation work. The parish council and local residents immediately sprung to mind! Do you think there'd be a few people that would be keen to do something around the village and on their own properties?

There's no hard and fast plans as to what this could involve. I'm sure you could even do things on a fairly small scale. Perhaps extending on the bird nest box program to include gardens? Invertebrate habitat, bat boxes, bird feeding stations, hedgehog hibernation boxes, etc. Anything such as these.

I'm not sure whether Natural England could provide any funding but I'm sure they could give guidance. The local birdwatching society could advise on anything in their field of expertise. Perhaps mention it at your next meeting and see what people think then let me know and I'll see how I can put the relevant parties together.

Kind regards

Jack Sykes
